Cremona Maestro Series Violins Now Available In Fractional Sizes!

San Francisco, CA / June 12, 2004— The Cremona Maestro Series has been a top-selling line in our full-size models—and now we offer our SV-1220 and SV-1340 models in sizes 4/4 to 1/4. This means that students as young as eight years old can play a fully hand-carved, fine sounding professional instrument that can be purchased at a moderate cost.

The most critical time when the student requires a quality violin is in the initial learning stages—it can make the difference between success or failure if the instrument inspires the student to overcome the drudgery of daily practice and turn it into joyful exercise. SAGA provides just such inspiring instruments that make daily practice a joy—and we call them the Cremona Maestro Series!

The Cremona Maestro Series SV-1220 violin features a flamed-maple 2-piece back and a select spruce top—both fully hand carved and graduated. A lovely oil varnish finish and Hill-style boxwood trimmings make the SV-1220 look every bit as beautiful as it sounds. The model SV-1340 boasts an even finer wood selection and features a highly flamed one-piece maple back. Both models come complete with our J. LaSalle LB-19 wood and horsehair bow and a Travelite TL-35 deluxe suspension case.

You'll be amazed at the professional tone and quality found in these fractional instruments—at such a moderate price—but that's just what you'll find in the Cremona Maestro Series from SAGA!
